THE EMANCIPATION OF WOMAN IN THE SYNAGOGUE

By Ferdinand M. Isserman

At a recent meeting of an assembly of Orthodox rabbis, the fiat was issued that the separate seating of women in the synagogue be considered an indispensable feature of religious worship. In sharp contradiction to this attitude, we have the actions of some of America's leading synagogues, which not only have abolished the separate seating of women, but which have admitted women to full membership privileges as well as the right to hold office. In the two leading congregations of Philadelphia, women sit as full-fledged members of the board of trustees. This is as it should be. The subordination of women in the religious sphere is a relic of a primitive form of social organization, which the modern age has repudiated. With the enactment of universal suffrage laws, with the entrance of women in the professions and in politics, the emancipation of woman was completed except in the field of religion. Liberal Jewish leaders have recognized this, and have seen the injustice of denying women religious equality. Their eligibility to synagogue membership and synagogue office has therefore been declared. The Liberal rabbis have welcomed this, not only because of the inherent justice of it, but because the women through their auxiliary organizations, and their loyalty to all which the synagogue strives to accomplish have merited such recognition. We see no reason on earth why a man who honours the synagogue by his absence except on the high holidays should have more consideration extended to him than a woman who throughout the year has worked earnestly and sincerely to advance the ideals and enhance the interests of the synagogue.

In Jewish religious worship women have played minor roles. They were not eligible for bar-mitzvah. They were not counted for the minyan. They, at least in modern times, were not permitted to read from the Torah. They were not even expected to pray as regularly and as faithfully as men. While a Jewish father would move heaven and earth to instruct his son in religion, he was apathetic to his daughter's religious education as well as to her secular education. This condition Liberal Judaism has rectified. It has declared woman's religious equality, and has given her equal responsibilities with man. Confirmation was established permitting the formal induction of girls into Judaism. Separate seating was abolished, and women admitted to synagogue membership and synagogue office. The emancipation of woman's religious emancipation in Judaism was attained when three and a half years ago the Central Conference of American Rabbis unanimously declared that women were to be ordained, if morally and intellectually qualified for the rabbinical office. This removed the last religious handicap for the Jewish woman. We hail with delight this advance. At the last meeting of the Holy Blossom Congregation a motion to make women eligible for membership and all membership privileges, including the right to hold office, was intro-

DIVORCE OR "GET"

By Herbert J. Samuel

Canadian newspapers recently reported the case of a charge of bigamy arising out of a Jewish "get," or divorce. Not long ago the defendant in a divorce case in the west of Canada was a woman, who was sued by her husband on the ground of adultery, because, having received a "get" from him, she went through a "stille chuppah" with another man. Cases of deserted wives are continually perplexing our charitable agencies, where the desertion consists, in the first instance, of a "get," and, in the second instance, of desertion following a "stille chuppah." The woman is left helpless, and there is often much misery for the children who are left "living orphans" and illegitimate in the eyes of the law.

It is fully time that steps were taken to put a stop to the interference with the law of the land that is practised by irresponsible rabbis. The giving of a "get" to a couple who have not been divorced by the civil court is an interference with the law of the land, and, as such, is opposed to the principle of Jewish law. Marriage is a civil contract, subject to the provisions of the civil law. The act of marriage is the concern of the state. Its assumption and dissolution are governed by the requirements of the law of the state. The form of marriage is a matter for the individual parties in accordance with their religious associations. A clergyman is entitled to refuse the sanction of holy matrimony to those who do not comply with the standards of his religious community, but he is not permitted to solemnize a marriage that would be illegal in the eyes of the law. The state alone has the right to determine under what conditions a marriage shall be dissolved.

The principle is very clearly laid down in the introduction to the Shulchan Aruch, Eben Ha-ezer (which deals with the laws of marriage and divorce), that in all matters where the law of the land differs from Jewish law, the law of the land overrides the Jewish law. Dina de-malchusa dina—the law of the land is the law. Ve-ho-osur al pi dina de-malchusa hu osur gam mitsad das Yisroel—the practice of that which is prohibited by the statutes of the land is also prohibited by Jewish law. Jewish law can only prevail when it acts not contrary to state law. The rabbi, therefore, who takes upon himself to unite in marriage those who are not qualified for marriage in the eyes of the state, or to issue a "get" which is not legal, is himself breaking the law, not only of the state, but of Judaism also. He renders those whom he is misleading amenable to the criminal law. The "get" is excusable only after a decree of divorce has been made absolute by the court.

It is true that with regard to divorce Jewish law is more rational and humane than the English law, on which our Canadian law is based. Jewish law permits the release from a life of misery and wretchedness of people who cannot live together harmoniously.

More than $50,000 was raised before the banquet closed.

Mrs. A. J. Freiman, of Ottawa, started the announcements by giving the contribution of her husband of $5,000. This was followed by contributions of the same amount from Mark Workman, Montreal, honourary president of the Canadian Zionists; Toronto Hadassah chapters, and one of $4,695 from the Montreal lodges of the Zionist Order of Habonim.

Miss Isa Kremer, singer, who was in the city filling an engagement, entered the banquet hall, and soon after it was announced that when special subscriptions aggregating five thousand dollars had been received by the chairman, she would sing a song. Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW:

Herbert W. Irwin, beloved teacher at Harbord Collegiate Institute and staunch friend and defender of the Jews, has died. He died and grief is in the heart of every Jewish student who was fortunate enough to know and be inspired by that great, loving, magnetic personality. A deep and wide gap is left which will probably never be filled. What Jewish student has not heard of Mr. Irwin, source of inspiration and help from which all of us drew, and which was never closed? Always ready and anxious he toiled for our sake until the early hours of the morning.

The Welcome Circle, a group specially organized by Mr. Irwin to welcome Jewish students from the old country and get them acquainted with Canadian life, will always remain a glowing memorial to his character. In his will he requested that no memorials of stone be raised to perpetuate his memory to posterity. But a greater memorial than that of stone or marble should be raised to perpetuate the memory of this moral giant, of this unselfish Christian.

Let us build a moral memorial for him in the form of a society named after him, where we can gather at certain times and continue the great teaching of unselfishness which so beautifully characterized our teacher.

S. RUBINOFF.

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

On Friday evening, January 8, Rabbi Schwartz, at the University Synagogue, said that he believes in time there will be more Jewish holidays added on to the festivals we have already. A very important holiday should be added to the Hebrew calendar and that is the Lord Balfour Day coupled with Thanksgiving. Organizations should parade with banners and march to the synagogues to offer prayers for their governments. Banquets should be held and high government officials invited. Things are not looking too bright for the Jewish people throughout Europe—and we don't know what would have happened if we had not got the Balfour Declaration.

Yours truly,
J. MORRIS

Editor,
CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW.

With reference to your contributed editorial "Palestine—A Success," there is one matter to which I would like to draw your attention. Mr. Samuel mentioned that the British government was "paying out hundreds of millions of pounds on the 'dole' (so called) supporting (!!!) the unemployed in idleness, and being an unproductive expenditure this is therefore an unwise expenditure."

What I would like to draw to the attention of your worthy contributor is the fact that the "dole" bubble has in England, at least—been burst, and the people in England have at long last been made to realize that all this scare-head stuff was only originated by a certain sensational English newspaper noted for its anti-government complex.

The "dole" was never a dole at all, but an Unemployed Insurance Act originated by the British government somewhat similar to the National Health Insurance Scheme introduced by Mr. Lloyd George some years before.

The unfortunate part of the business seems to be that instead of a money-making scheme, it is the reverse; but to the British government it is a matter of business, and they, after receiving the (at least) sixteen weeks' enforced contributions, naturally, not being "pikers" stand by their promise and pay up on their obligations, similar to the way the English-owned insurance companies paid up to their insured sufferers of the great San Francisco fire, when those of other countries threw up their hands.

The Englishmen realized at the time it was a business obligation which had to be faced, decidedly not an "unproductive expenditure" forsooth—and they faced—and paid their clients like the honest men I have always found the English business man to be.

Although this has nothing to do with Judaism—or Zionism (I speak both for Mr. Samuel and myself), and you disclaim responsibility for endorsement of the views of the contributors to the REVIEW, nevertheless I would be obliged if you publish this letter verbatim, and so help to dissolve a misrepresentation to which you were an unconscious contributor.

I am, sincerely, ate law insists that there must first a resort to immoral conduct. It is e that the adoption, in the main, of e Jewish law, would promote happiness d a higher regard for the sanctity of e home, though it must not be overoked that a loosening of the restraints the marriage tie may result in a conion of unsatisfactory chaos such as is be found in the United States. But, ce the law of the state stands, it must obeyed. We may hope to see, and e may endeavour to bring about, by onstitutional means, an amelioration of e state law, but we may not set it de to become a law to ourselves.

The giving of a "get" is sometimes efended by the rabbis with an argunent that has something to be said for and which should be carefully examined. Where incompatibility has een established, but where the requirements of the law as to immoral conduct ave not been fulfilled, the court may rant a judicial separation, or the parties ay, without recourse to the court, raw up an agreement of separation. t is only natural that this results very ften in conduct which is immoral in he eyes of the law. A separation order s too frequently looked upon as a license or loose living, such as is abhorrent to he purer idea of Jewish family life. In rder to overcome this offense against ewish standards, the rabbi gives a 'get" so that at least the guilty parties hall not be breaking the religious law s well as the civil law. Now it may be rgued that the rabbi is not called upon o prevent an abuse which the law of he land obviously condones, that, knowing that a separated couple are likely to be forming loose and illicit relationships, he is concerned to avoid a breach of morals according to Jewish standards without reference to other standards, that he is entitled to do what he can to mitigate what are admittedly evil conditions. But the "get" leads to the "stille chuppah," with all its evils and its wretched consequences. The "get," moreover, acts as a religious sanction to a breach of the civil law, and, as such, brings the Jewish religion into disrepute. It is no proper remedy for an evil which exists. It is to all intents and purposes a divorce, and is contrary to the law of the land. Jews must accept citizenship with its disadvantages as well as its advantages.

Jewish law is not free from disadvantages, and Jewish authority claims inability to remedy those disadvantages. A woman may be divorced, but she cannot divorce. The "get" is a one-sided affair. There are instances where a Jewish woman has divorced her husband in the civil courts, without a stain on her own character, and where the husband has refused her a "get," or cannot be found to give her one, with the result that Jewish law has no remedy for her. She must remain unmarried, though the civil law has set her free and annulled her marriage. The "Agunah," the deserted wife, has no remedy. She must remain neither wife nor widow. The woman whose husband dies without issue must submit to a mediaeval and unpleasant ceremony—"Chalitza"—and is often denied that "privilege" through the malice of brothers-in-law. "In Continental lands," wrote the Chief Rabbi of England in his message to the Conference of Anglo-Jewish Preachers last summer, "the operation of Jewish law has for many generations been strictly circumscribed, and rabbinical jurisdiction hampered, both from without and within. In consequence, Jewish religious law suffers from arrested development." Dr. Hertz hopes that in Palestine a solution may be ultimately found. That solution, if it is to be a solution, must provide justice and equality for the Jewish woman and relieve her from the cruelty of her present position. In the meantime, Reform Judaism has found the solution in setting aside the "circumscribed and hampered" rabbinical jurisdiction. It does not ask the poor afflicted Jewish woman to put up with her cruel misery until, at some distant and problematical date, a future generation of women may obtain justice.

The argument for the "get" fades into insignificance beside these greater evils. The "get" acts as a license for illegality in the eyes of the civil law, and results in confusion in family life. It brings Jewish practice into disrepute to the extent of a "chillul hashem." It should therefore be stopped. A rabbi who is licensed to solemnize marriages should be compelled to respect the law under which he holds his license. Jewish communities in Canada should not tolerate a practice which constitutes a breach of the criminal code, and should prevent the ignorant and unwary from being led into committing an indictable offense at the advice of the "learned" man to whom they turn for guidance. The laws of other lands may be preferable to those of this land—in the opinion of some. But people who live in this land must accept and abide by the laws that prevail here, until, by the influence of reason, they succeed in improving those laws. The evils of the Canadian divorce laws are trivial compared with the evils of the immutable Jewish laws. Let the "get" rabbis remedy the evils of Jewish law before they attempt to interfere with the inconveniences of Canadian law.

JEWISH GIRLS' CLUB, COUNCIL OF JEWISH WOMEN

At the monthly meeting of the Jewish Girls' Club the director reported to date 217 new members had registered since September. The total attendance had been 7,347 and there had been 331 classes.

A training class for group leaders has been organized. There will be a course of lectures given by the University of Toronto in the social service department, under the direction of Mrs. G. Cameron Parker, beginning Tuesday, January 26, at 8 p.m., for the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month. The first Tuesday of each month a supper meeting will be held at the Primrose Club in conjunction with the Mentors of the Boys' Club and the third Tuesday there will be a supper meeting with a speaker, for the leaders of the Girls' Club at the Community House.

The first large affair attempted by the Josephi Girls took place January 12, when they staged a play and dance at the Foresters' Hall, which was filled. The Club divided itself into two teams for ticket selling and the losing team is to treat to a dinner. The Community House is to give a silver cup to the girl selling the most. The play was written by Miss Rita Levine. Carrie Lieberman, Jean Wittenberg, Ruth Gorvoy, Ruth Walton, Irving Dickler and Harold Massey took part. Dave Taitblatt played the violin, accompanied by Miss Florence Creig. Hilda Eckler danced. The play was staged again Sunday evening, January 17, at the Community House, for the members of the Club.

The Kademah Girls entertained their boy friends at a dance at the Community House, Monday evening, January 11. About thirty were present. Miss May Stein, their former leader, was guest of honour. The party was chaperoned by their present leader, Miss Anne Chaiken.

Sunday evening, January 24, the Evelyn Circle will debate the Kademah Girls on "Resolved that the Jews of the Diaspora should return to Palestine."

Sunday afternoon, January 24, the A.E.C. Girls, leadership Miss Miriam Simonsky, will give a party and entertainment.

Beatrix Girls monthly supper, Community House, Sunday, January 24.

The "Wags" (the Wide Awake Girls), having grown too many under Miss Rebecca Hyman's direction, have been divided into two groups, one to be known as the "Wags" and the other, with Miss Helen Goldstein, as the "Merry Sprites."

A Complete Report of the Twentieth Zionist Convention

(Notes from the diary of a typical Toronto Delegate)

Louis Fitch, of Montreal, now wears glasses with ear pieces, and not the pince-nez with the shoelace, generally shown in his convention photographs. Has he stopped pulling strings?

Schiffer, of Winnipeg, submitted to the Convention a schedule of taxes on amusements which they are enforcing among Zionists in his city on behalf of the National Fund. Here are a few of the items:

For kissing one's own wife, 25 cents.

For kissing someone else's wife, 50 cents.

For a drink of one's own stuff, 10 cents.

For a drink at a friend's, 25 cents.

The Convention taxed itself for an hour listening to this exposition of Zionist high-financing.

Said M. Gelber, who presided during the last few minutes of the session on Sunday afternoon, in paying a tribute to Rabbi Schwartz, "This has been a wonderful day: we started this morning with a speech by Sokolow, and are finishing this evening with a speech by Rabbi Schwartz."

Dr. A. O. Friedman, chairman of Young Judaea, in presenting his report, told this story: Once he was treating a patient whose condition was hopeless. He had been comforting him with promises of eventual recovery. Finally, when the patient realized that he was beyond help, he forced Dr. Freedman to commit himself definitely. "I am afraid God alone can help you," said the doctor. "Yes," retorted the patient, "God alone can help me. He is the doctor and you are only the collector." Close friends of Dr. Freedman say that he laughs only during Zionist conventions.

Several Toronto delegates were not elected members of the National Council.

Friday morning: The Pullman porter, although a resident of Toronto, did not know that Toronto is the best Zionist city in Canada.

Friday evening: Business is bad in Montreal, too. I'll walk over to the Spanish and Portuguese Synagogue. They say it has a big congregation. Wonder if the services will be conducted in Spanish and Portuguese? I expect the Mount Royal cafeteria will have "gefilte fish" to-night in honour of the convention.

Saturday night: Went to the "Sharei Shomayim" synagogue this morning. The doorkeeper knew I was a delegate and gave me a welcoming smile. The synagogue must have cost a million dollars. Rabbi Abramowitz was so dignified. He must get as big a salary as a reform rabbi. One of the men with the silk hats near the ark was Lyon Cohen. M. Gelber was occupying a seat of honour. Guess if he lived in Montreal they would let him join that congregation.

Had dinner at a Jewish restaurant on St. Lawrence Boulevard. We have just as good restaurants in Toronto. Walked around all afternoon. No real bargains in the windows. In Toronto we entertain visiting delegates better.

In the evening I went to the Hebrew meeting. Mr. Gelber was on the platform. I did not understand much of what was being said, but Zionists must show their respect for Hebrew. Got my credential from Joseph Fineberg. He makes you feel that getting the credential is like getting the freedom of the city of Montreal.

Sunday morning. Met the rest of the Toronto delegates. It's great to see familiar faces from home.

Sunday afternoon: The mass meeting was wonderful. Mr. Sourkes was wonderful. Mr. Freiman was wonderful. Mr. Sokolow was wonderful. Mr. Fitch was wonderful.

Sunday evening: Attended the afternoon session. Over five hundred delegates. London has four delegates—how could Mr. Fineberg make such a mistake and announce only three from that city? Delegates from the West spent a fortune in railway fares coming down. They are entitled to a bigger say than the Montrealers. There was a lot of noise and laughter in the hall, but the Toronto delegates were serious.

Sunday night: They had lots of sandwiches at the dinner-ball. The Toronto delegates got together in a corner and sang Jewish songs.

Monday afternoon: The morning session started late. Toronto was mentioned in Mr. Gelber's report. Toronto has given money to the Zionist funds. Toronto Zionists are mostly women. The Convention praised the women. The Young Judaea report showed that the youngsters cost the Federation a lot of money, and did not contribute anything to any of the funds. What good is education if it does not bring in returns in dollars and cents? Too bad the Young Judaeans are not like the women of Hadassah! During the lunch hour I interviewed the members of the Nominations Committee. I will become a member of the National Council.

Monday evening: The afternoon session dealt with some more reports. The resolutions committee brought in resolutions, but it was too late in the day and the Convention sent them on to the executive. The Convention has supreme confidence in the executive.

Election of officers and council. I was elected by the nominations committee as a member of the National Council. Sokolow delivered the closing speech and the chairman the closing blow with the gavel.

Tuesday morning: There was a banquet. They raised pledges for the Keren Hayesod. Must go out and see a few customers. After all, I came here to do business.

HEBREW ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The Toronto Hebrew Athletic Association Intermediates, led by Sammy Gold, defeated the Broadview "Y" team 18-16. Jack Brietstein and W. Sniderman were the stars. Benny Goldman, Earl Freeman, Willie Gold, Irving Gold, Harry Posen, George Altman and Black were other players.

The Juniors ended their season by defeating the leading West End "Y" 25-24. Leonard Smith scored five baskets, one of them with two seconds to play. Captain Harry Mendelsohn played every position. Kaplan, Stone Eddie Sniderman, Harold Massey and Joe Benjamin played.

The Juveniles, led by Joe Males, defeated the St. Christopher quintette 35-8. Skurko scored 19 points. Al. Pastemack, Gluskin, Garbe, Lister and Harry Joseph played.

The Midgets lost to St. Christopher 12-6. Duckman and Shatz played for the losers.

1926 TOUR TO ALASKA

Arrangements for an all-expense, personally conducted tour to Alaska have now been completed, starting from Toronto via the Canadian National Railways, early in July, visiting en route important Western Canadian cities, Wainwright Buffalo Park, Jasper National Park and Pacific coast points. This will be one of the finest trips anyone can possibly take, from a scenic and educational point of view. A folder, descriptive of the tour and giving complete information, is now in hand and will be available shortly on application to Mr. Martin Kerr, Principal of Earl Kitchener School, 4 Beulah Avenue, Hamilton, and Mr. A. E. Bryson, Principal of Silverthorn School, 44 Silverthorn Avenue, Toronto. In view of the very heavy traffic to Alaska during the short season available, it would be well to make early reservation, as demands for accommodations are sure to be heavy.

Every Friday

My dear f.f.c.:

I want you to know how much I appreciate the article in the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW under the caption "Every Friday." Evidently you understood the situation, knew just what the problem was and were brave enough to utter your just views, though surrounded by such as could hardly be expected to be sympathetic to your viewpoint.

With deep appreciation,
Yours,
(Sgd.) STEPHEN S. WISE,
Chairman, United Palestine Appeal.

Toronto Jewish community is, for the most part, an Orthodox Jewish community. Its elders, devoted to the cause of Orthodoxy, turn pale when Christmas and Chanukah, Jews and Jesus are mentioned in the same breath. Even its Reform Jews, so-called, still wear their hats in schul and most of them appear much less at ease under silk "talesim" than they would in the man-size praying shawls they used to wear. The following letter, then, printed by request of the writer, who intended it for the mail box, will be of vital interest to many readers:

"I am not usually given to rushing into print on the least provocation, but a condition of affairs has become known to me, which, to say the least, merits comment. A few days ago the regular monthly meeting and supper of the Mentors of the Jewish Boys' Club and Community House were held at the Primrose Club. As I am a Mentor, I was of course present. Now the menu included meat, bread and butter, and for dessert, ice-cream and coffee. I do not desire to argue the pros and cons of our dietary laws, but what I wish to emphasize is this, that if indifference to these laws is the custom at the club composed of Jews, successful Jews and leaders in the community, a good many of whom are members of Orthodox synagogues, then I say that these Jews should cease to be hypocrites and become Jews in fact as well as name. If the situation has come about without their knowledge, then it is high time that the house committee began to function.

"The Primrose Club is the centre of a great many Jewish activities and when one is served with food, one at least expects it to be kosher. In a Gentile restaurant that would not be the case, but in a Jewish club kosher food is to be expected. In closing I hope that my object in mentioning the incident above will not be construed as an attack upon the Jewish Boys' Club. Thanking you in advance for publishing this letter, I am, yours sincerely, A. Fine, 265 Crawford Street."

Another letter on the same subject has been received from a lady who wants her name withheld, but who is known to the REVIEW. It reads:

"Permit me, through the medium of your valuable paper, to utter a protest against what I think to be an insult to the Jewish women of this city at a recent luncheon at the Primrose Club.

"I do not wish to appear to be intolerant of other people's views, nor unduly bigoted in matters of ritual and form, but I do think it most unfair, and to put it mildly, rather out of place, to serve 'trefis' to Jewish women, 95 per cent. of whom were strictly Orthodox and proud of keeping 'kosher' homes.

"We Jewish women of Toronto are the ones who have in our hands the rearing of the future generation who will carry on what we have begun. We can still hear the echo of the impassioned appeal of Miss Eva Leon, to rear our children as Jewish children, to be proud of our Jewishness. Why, then, at a luncheon for Jewish women, should not a kosher meal be served, just as it was at the banquet tendered to Miss Leon?

"My understand of the Primrose Club was that it was a Jewish institution, a Jewish centre, and I do not see why the most fundamental dietary laws of our religion, laws which have always been the object of respect and admiration of our Gentile friends, should not be adhered to, but flaunted. Whom are we trying to impress at the Primrose Club—the waiters? Or do we desire to be more Gentile than the Gentile himself?"

Now, from the viewpoint of Orthodoxy, the writers of these letters are justified in their indignation and admirable in the expression of it. Most of the Jews who know the Primrose Club best are Orthodox Jews and would resent being called anything else. If they do not know that milk and meat are served there frequently at the same time, they are blind and perhaps deaf. If they do know, then they are indulging themselves in just one of the many inconsistencies which Orthodox Jews often enjoy.

The Talmud Torah must owe its existence largely to these very Jews and "our children" is their favourite cry. How can they expect their young ones to be more Orthodox than they are? Let no one censure the young Mentor who wrote the first letter. From the viewpoint of community Orthodox elders he is just the stuff they are looking for to carry on their purpose. If his letter is instrumental in making the Primrose Club safe for the Orthodox, he has done a service to the Orthodox element in the community. The Primrose Club may not like it, but persons who expect the Club to serve kosher meals because those most concerned with it are Orthodox Jews, are quite within their rights. Rebukes administered by these letter-writers are very fitting and should be placed where they belong.

Five is our long limit

We limit our endeavours in the laundry business to five different services. Some housewives like to do everything but the actual washing. We have a service—damp wash—which exactly fits such a requirement. And so on—each of the five services takes the family wash one step further towards completion. In other words, you may choose the exact amount of help you require — no more, no less — and pay only for that portion. Incidentally prices are pleasingly moderate. Phone to-day.

"Salvation Is of the Jews"—St. Luke 4:22

A Stenographic Report of a Sermon Preached by Rev. F. J. Moore, St. James' Cathedral, Toronto

Both Jews and Christians throughout this continent were roused to interest, if not excitement, the other day by the utterance of Rabbi Wise, in New York, to the effect that Jews must make up their minds to admit the historicity of Jesus and to face and properly evaluate His teachings. It did not take long for those who did not agree with the Rabbi's general position to utter their protest, but it found support from a greater number of liberal Jews than a good many people would suppose possible. The truth is that Rabbi Wise was only giving expression, precise and public expression, to what has been believed by liberal Jews for a good many years. I have, for example, in my possession a book that was written at the end of last century on Jesus by a Jew, in which he depicts—in a sort of romantic form—Jesus as a true child of His race and time. Then one of the very best introductions to the study of the first three Gospels that we have was written by a Jewish layman, Mr. Claude Montefiore. I also know that Rabbi Wise's opinion was more or less shared by Rabbi Brickner, who used to be here at Bond Street Synagogue, and that the same position, generally speaking, is taken by Rabbi Isserman, and I suppose I could say that it was the viewpoint of liberal Rabbis the world over. But, in order to avoid misunderstanding, in order, that is, to avoid people running away with the idea that there are multitudes of Jews on the very verge of becoming Christians, we have been told quite plainly what the liberal Jewish position really is. It does not mean that they accept, or that they urge their people to accept the Christ of Christian theology. It means neither more nor less than that they believe Jews must give to Jesus the place that He properly holds in the history of the Jewish people: that His ethical and religious teachings must receive the same reverential treatment as the teachings of their other great teachers of the past: that He must be recognized, as one has put it, "as the logical product of the prophetic tradition of Israel," and, as I have seen it elsewhere, "as the spiritual flower of their race."

Now, although this open-mindedness towards Jesus of liberal Jews cannot but be received by every man or woman who has been brought up to call Jesus "Lord," cannot but be welcomed by them, it will seem to many that it is little enough to have brought forth a violent protest from Orthodox Jews. They will consider it to be a rather trite observation after all. But it happens that there is something else to be said about it, and that something else ought to concern every sincere Christian man or woman very deeply. Have you ever paused to reflect, have you ever asked yourself, why Jews have not turned their attention to Jesus before; why so many of them are still very bitter about Him; why Jews have not seen in Him their friend and saviour as other people have seen in Him their friend and saviour? After all, sixty years, the time covered, more or less, by the modern Liberal Jewish movement, is only a mere speck in the two thousand years since the time of Christ, and Jews have not been converted in large numbers; they have, indeed, only been converted in odd cases, since the early days of the Church. Nor is the liberal Jew, as we have seen, convinced of the divinity of Jesus. No, and the fact that I want us to face to-night is that they tell us that they have not even been drawn so far towards Him, as they have been drawn, by what they have seen in the lives of Christian people about them. They are beginning to look at Jesus because He stands there on the pages of history and cannot be ignored. But they tell us quite plainly, even liberal Jews tell us quite plainly, that we have not helped them to see Him: rather we have hindered them from seeing Him—I am speaking, of course, of Christians in the mass—and we have made it impossible for some of them to see Him at all. Let me read you two quotations, one from Rabbi Samuel, in Montreal, a liberal Rabbi, and the other from Rabbi Isserman, in Toronto, from articles that were written for the CANADIAN JEWISH REVIEW, to support Rabbi Wise, but pointing out, by the way, why so many Jews were sure to protest. This is what Rabbi Samuel says—these are terrific words:—"Jesus cannot stand for the Jew otherwise than as the symbol of the inhumanity of Christianity. The Church has in practice made the name of Jesus a hated one for Jews. Jewish history is the record, writ in blood and anguish, of Christian zeal for the sake of Jesus. Jewish experience in the present day is due to the Christian interpretation of the inspiration of Jesus. Standard and authoritative Christianity still upholds a Christ who is the deity of the sword, of wars, of bloodshed, of persecution, of hatred, of intolerance, of injustice. Witness the appreciation of Jesus preached by the Church to the people of Rumania, Hungary, Ukrainia, Poland, Germany and even America." This is what Rabbi Isserman says: "For many centuries the Jews have suffered agony and torture and martyrdom at the hands of men who bore the crucifix in one hand and the bloody sword in the other. Many a pogrom has been started by Christians in the name of their founder, and we can understand how men and women in whose minds the bloody shadows of pogroms still lurk will wince at the mention of the name of Jesus."

Now I confess that when I read these indictments, these terrible indictments, I found myself wanting to protest, "They are exaggerated! Surely they are exaggerated!" But you know, the real and shameful truth is that they are not. Suffering and persecution, ostracism and oppression at the hands of Christians have been the lot of Jews all down the Christian centuries after the days of the early Church. It was only in the nineteenth century, and towards the end of it, that some nations gave civil liberty to Jews, and there are many nations who have not given it to them yet. Some continue still their policy of hounding and persecuting the Jews. Russia, Rumania and Austria, in our own generation, in our own time, have a long record of Jewish suffering at Christian hands. As a Christian writer says: "Protestants, the Church of Rome, and the whole Orthodox Church have alike to give account of the wrongs done to the Jews." So I was driven back to a second line of defence, and my second line of defence was, "Well, these things do not happen in this enlightened land." No, they do not, but I did not find my conscience altogether quiet, nevertheless, because I went on to ask, "What are our relations to Jews in this enlightened land? And I was not quite satisfied that they are altogether as kindly and sympathetic and tolerant as Jews have a right to expect of us as disciples of Jesus Christ. To be perfectly honest with ourselves, do we usually find Christians really Christian in their attitude to Jews? I know there is a perfectly easy answer to that question, but it really has nothing whatever to do with it. Christian men and women are not relieved from behaving in a Christian way to people because they are difficult to get on with. Indeed, when you bring the meaning of the Christian life down to a fine point, that is exactly what we are Christians for: to behave in a Christ-

AS President of the Toronto Hair Dressers' Association, Local No. 1 of the National Hair Dressers' Association of Canada, we heartily thank our patrons and the general public for the unstinted support they gave our first exhibition.

The exhibits were equally as good as any of the American exhibitions, and as a whole was equally as large a success.

All the lectures and demonstrations were of exceptional value. Our demonstrations of Inecto Rapid were an entire success.

Our models paraded through the audience for examination and they were pronounced perfect in every respect.

Our demonstrations of hair goods have not been surpassed anywhere in Europe or America for quality and naturalness and we court a thorough examination of all our products.

Our Steam Wave was a wonderful favorite and we had many enquiries as to the process by which we do it.

This is the first time in history that two of the largest film companies have taken moving pictures of a Hair Dressing and Beauty Culture Exhibition which have been broadcast all over the world and the publicity in the press and the moving pictures will advertise Toronto more than it has ever been done before.

Again thanking our patrons for their aid in making this exhibition a wonderful success, we are.

Joseph Greisman announces the marriage of his daughter, Sarah Miriam, to James Shaen, of Winnipeg, Man., in New York City, December 27.

Clapham—Rosenthal

The wedding was solemnized in the Pompeian room of the King Edward Hotel, Wednesday, January 6, of Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rosenthal and Donald Clapham, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. Clapham. The ceremony was held at the McCaul Street Synagogue which was decorated with palm plants. Rabbi J. Gordon officiated, assisted by Rabbi Jesse Schwartz and Cantor Herman. The bride's grandfather, S. Yolles, gave the benediction. The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, entered the synagogue to the music of Mendelssohn's wedding march. She wore a white gown of crepe romaine studded with rhinestones. Her veil, done in Grecian effect, was held in place with orange blossoms. The bride carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses, lilies-of-the-valley and baby breath, and was attended by her sister, Miss Cecile Rosenthal, who wore a gown of pink georgette and headdress of silver buds. The bridesmaids were Miss Amelia Adler in a gown of rose taffeta trimmed with rhinestones, Miss Beatrice Clapham, peach georgette, trimmed with flowers, and Miss Freda Lewis, powder blue georgette, trimmed with gold lace. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of Columbia roses. Shirley Clapham, the flower girl, wore a pale pink taffeta dress with ribbon streamers, and carried a basket of lilies-of-the-valley. Lewis Yolles attended the groom. The groomsmen were: Leon Clapham, Moe Levey and Henry Corb. Dinner was served to 100 guests in the Pompeian room. Mr. and Mrs. A. Rosenthal, the latter in a gown of gold lace trimmed with red georgette and a corsage of Premier roses, and Mr. and Mrs. S. Clapham, the latter in a gown of black charmeuse trimmed with silver lace and a corsage of Columbia roses, and the bride and groom, received 100 reception guests in the ball room which was decorated with palms and flowers.

The out-of-town guests were: Mrs. M. Cohl, Miss Muriel Cohl and Mrs. H. Burnett, of Detroit; Mr. and Mrs. E. Evantash and daughter, Tillie, of Camden, N.J.; D. Stein and Miss F. Stein, of Hamilton; Mr. and Mrs. R. Cohen, of Windsor.

Mr. and Mrs. Clapham left on their honeymoon for New York, Philadelphia, Camden and Atlantic City, the bride travelling in a rust ensemble suit with hat to match.

Confidence--the Keynote of Success

The knowledge that one is properly dressed creates that confidence which characterizes a successful man.

Collars that feel like a caress. The Van-Dusen and semi-soft made to rival the best starched collar.

Shirts that fit correctly. No bulging at neck or bosom. Cuffs turned evenly, and when necessary taken off and reversed.

Socks and Wool'ens with that soft, velvety feeling so much desired and only possible when a soap like "Ivory" is used.

Repairs—Every article the man wears kept in first-class condition, not merely "mending free."

Service of Mercy and Love Now in Need of Assistance

IN the face of growing demands, confronted with a much enlarged field of usefulness, the Hospital for Sick Children has to meet the difficult problem of being able to do all that is expected of it with a revenue that does not meet the cost of maintenance.

The Hospital had 5,946 cot-patients during last year, the daily average number being 265. At the out-patients' wing the total number of treatments given was 55,122, an average of 179 every day.

No race or creed distinctions are made in the Hospital for Sick Children, where everything that science and loving care can accomplish is done for the little sufferers, all alike.

The Trustees appeal with confidence to the many Jewish friends of the Hospital to come to its assistance with liberal donations at this needy time.

"Salvation Is of the Jews"

like way, to behave as Christ would have behaved to people who—well who made it very hard to behave to them like that. In fact, the more reason we have for disliking people the more determined and insistent we are to be that we shall be kind to them, that we shall try and love them, that we shall behave to them in a divine, a Christ-like spirit. That is a side of our Lord's teaching that we are too apt to forget, but I would rather stand before Him at the last day having really tried to do it, than offer as my passport into Heaven that I believed the Creed, and that I had always called Him Lord. He has warned us beforehand about the futility of that, but it is a lesson that seems very hard for most of us to learn. The truth is we Christian people have a very special reason to be kindly to Jews. A very special reason for friendliness and for eternal gratitude. I was once at a college debate, not so very long ago at which the subject was "The Debt We Owe to the Jew," and, to my surprise, while all four speakers drew our attention to various things that we had inherited from the Jew, some good, some bad, not one of them really hit on the very thing that was staring everybody in the face, and I ventured afterwards to point it out, when called upon to speak We owe Jesus to the Jew. Jesus was a Jew, and salvation is of the Jews. Even if Jesus had never come, salvation would have been of the Jews They were the religious pioneers of the race. They had given us, even before He came, the highest ethics in the world by their long line of prophets. Joseph and Mary were devout Jews, and when they took Jesus, at the age of twelve, up to the temple, they were making Him a devout Jew. That was His "confirmation," and He became then a son of the law. His own religion was Jewish religion. He had learned its principles in His home and in the school of the synagogue. He never broke away from Jewish religion. He may have spiritually purified it, lifted it up, but He never broke away from it. He was in the line of the prophets. His twelve apostles were Jews, and it was a Jewish religion that they went out to give to the world, as a Jewish sect that they tried to convert the world. Our inheritance in the Church of England is largely Judaic. We get the Psalms from the Jews. That anthem we sang just now came from the Jews. I do not mean the music, but the words. Our religion at its basis is Judaic in our fundamental conception of God and in the ethical concepts of Jesus Christ. So that we owe a great debt to the Jews. We have a real reason to be thankful to the Jews. We owe a debt that we can never pay, but surely the least we can do is to remember that we owe them one. "Yes," someone says, "we do, but if the Jews gave us Jesus, they crucified Him also, and does not that cancel the debt?" No, it does not, for, if a group of fanatical religious officials in Jerusalem did encompass the death of Jesus, what had that to do with Jews elsewhere? What have Jews ever since had to do with it? Moreover, I am not so sure that if Jesus came again in the same way, in disguise, to to speak, and came to Christians this time rather than Jews, that He would fare any better. He would not be crucified to be sure, we don't do that sort of thing now, but there are other ways of killing our prophets besides crucifying them; and if St. Paul's words are to be taken seriously about crucifying the Son of God afresh, He has been crucified over and over again in Christian history and by those who have named His Name. So we really ought not to let the tragedy of the cross stand between Christians and Jews any longer. The guilt of putting Christ to death, in St. Paul's sense anyhow, is ours just as much as theirs. The cross, rather than divide us, ought to bring us together. We ought to stand there and be reconciled by the blood of His cross because there we see a Man who died that He might bring other men to God. I should like to read a few more words from Rabbi Isserman here. It was in the same article, and these words are an appeal to his fellow-Jews not to carry bitterness in their hearts because they may have received un-Christian treatment at Christian hands. He says: "We must not confuse the Galilean Jew who lived in the first century with his followers who failed to apply his teachings. Jesus is no more guilty of the Jewish persecution than the modern Jews are guilty of His crucifixion. If Christians had only lived His teachings, how different history would have been. We Jews to-day can be just to the character of Jesus even though His followers are not just to us, His people. Therein will lie our spirituality. Therein will we vindicate our Jewishness." These are noble words and the only thing I would like to say in regard to them is this, that I hope they will lead us to see to it that through no fault of ours shall any Jew ever again be able to say that we have distorted the face of Jesus; that we have blinded his eyes to the person of Jesus. If we live the Christ-life they will see Him readily enough, and I for one believe that when they see Him they will be ready to reclaim Him.

We have a mission to Jews. I mean there is a mission to Jews kept up by monetary subscriptions, but there is a far better mission than that and that is your mission and mine. It is the mission of the Christ-like life amongst them. Nothing can convince a non-Christian more powerfully than a Christian life. As Emerson said: "All men are commanded by the saint." And as another man said: "A good life is a main argument." It is the best argument we have. Let us try it.
